

2009-2010 Spotlight on Ireland

Teacher Professional Development Workshop

Birmingham International Center is pleased to announce that Norman Houston, Director of the Northern Ireland Bureau Washington, D.C., has accepted the invitation to address K-12 educators at the Birmingham International Center's 2010 Professional Development Workshop. He will share the process of resolving the "troubles" in Northern Ireland.

Other workshops advertise that they are exciting or interactive, but how many of them allow you to clap, tap or dance your way through it? The Birmingham International Center has planned an Irish culture workshop by a renowned fiddler that will keep you on your feet. Jack or Jill of all subjects? "A Histogram of the artistic expressions of the Black Irish" is designed for you in mind. Would you rather be on-line? APTPLUS™ will demonstrate its latest interactive media that is free for parents and teachers. Looking for something to do now that college football is over? Well leave your shoulder pads at home. You won't need them for our non-contact Rugby session. To round it out, we have included a Celtic knot presentation for mathematicians.

Discover Ireland Kits

Of course we have more in store for you; this is only a taste of the offerings for this year's workshop. Participants will also receive Discover Ireland Kits containing CD's with lesson plans, and background information, all keyed to state course of study standards.

“Don't miss this great opportunity!”

Register Today!

Date: February 27, 2010

Location: Liberty Park Middle School
17051 Liberty Pkwy
Vestavia Hills, AL, 35242

Time: 8:30 a.m. – 12:30 p.m.

Single registration $35

*Group rate (two or more per school)
$25 per person

Student registration $15

Register at <http://bic-al.org> or call
205-252-7652

Our Embassy to the World